

ABSTRACT

This invention provides a method to induce the differentiation of animal cells wherein said cells are brought into contact with cytokine only in a suitable growth phase of animal cells, and also provides a system to control the differentiation potency of animal cells wherein two or more cytokines are combined for use in the cultivation or growing of animal cells.